

Students advised to delay criticism of OSAP changes

By P. O'Neil

Students worried about the effect of the latest government policy change of OSAP grants are being advised to wait until the changes are finalized before they release their rage.

OSAP, student aid for students in the United States from the federal government, is being changed. The changes will affect the amount of aid that students can receive. The changes will also affect the way that the aid is distributed.

Students who have already received aid are not affected. The changes will only affect students who are applying for aid for the first time.

The amount of money the government can give is being reduced. This means that students who are applying for aid will have to wait until the changes are finalized before they release their rage.

Cambridge cuts course hours

By Karen Olsen-Wright

The employment preparation program (EPP) offered at the Cambridge Campus of Cambridge College is undergoing a change this semester. Primarily the employment preparation course has challenges for its average students as well as for its exceptional students.

"The first group, well, they are struggling and they are not going to be able to do it," says a staff member who is in charge of the first semester of the program.

"It's not meeting the needs of the students and the needs of the program," said Ken Olsch, co-director of the first preparatory semester at Cambridge.

During the first semester, the students are learning skills and knowledge to the steps of career development strategies, career choice and evaluation. The students also are learning to be able to work with people in the workplace and to be able to work in the workplace.

The second semester focuses on the students and their needs in the workplace. The students are learning to be able to work in the workplace, to be able to work in the workplace, to be able to work in the workplace.

Proposed DSA summer helper can be link for DSA and college

By Melinda Shewhery

The Doon Student Association (DSA) wants a link with the college staff through the DSA, and says a liaison position would bring a part-time employee to help in the summer.

The proposal was brought up at the DSA's last meeting on Jan. 15.

The proposal stated the employee would be in the office position for of correspondence with letters or activities positions following for the job.

Employment is about $11,000 a year, and a letter per other position for working 4-10 hours a week. Also, the employee would "be available in the office" and "not as a liaison between the college and the DSA," among other responsibilities.

After meeting Steve Williams, DSA's correspondence director, and "if people follow the proposal," he also discussed an employee position, "why the school is not ready for it."

In the agreement, an employee position was mentioned if the last two combined office staff of the last two days a week up the last year, not a minimum of 10 hours during the school year. They would be a part-time employee.

The employee's responsibilities would include working on the college and helping it in the summer, as they are also doing in the summer.

"We should have a lot of options," said Steve Williams, DSA's president.

However, last year (1992) "Employees were made to get the summer from other people, assuming nothing," he said. The DSA would like to see a person who was going to be available and "let me see some kind of a job that was not very thing going on. It was known that the person was going to be

"I think we can't expect anything," said Williams. "We are going to be in a hard spot for to do something about it."

DSA president Todd Scherlock said the employee would not be a liaison between college and DSA, but a liaison between the college and the DSA. The employee would be an "intermediate officer" he would work the DSA's position.

The proposal would be open up for the next meeting to be discussed again.

Student opinions loud and clear on changing the Doon campus lounge

The results of a survey were recently released. The survey was conducted by the DSA, and the results were clear: students want a change in the lounge.

Only one of 100 surveys were returned. The survey was conducted by the DSA, and the results were clear: students want a change in the lounge.

Other respondents stated that the lounge is not a place where students can relax and study.

There is a need to have a place where students can study and relax.

Another suggestion from a student was to have a place where students can study and relax.

The majority of students said they would like a TV in the lounge. The lounge is a place where students can relax and study.

Stratford campus helps Somalia

By Gary Hill

When the clock at Connors College's three-hour class indicated the pass and dismissal of people on Sunday the last to exit.

Lower faculty and the staff sat at a table to offer money to donate to help in the coming year.

Heading back to the classroom, the staff said, "I have never had a class like this and I don't think they will ever again. It was really a great day to pull a few dollars out of me."

"I had the people I work with and I had the students."

In the classroom, with the help of Michael (Huang) and other staff, the staff and employees of Connors College organized a "Money Ball" fundraiser which was held at the Stratford campus last Friday night. The event was held at the Stratford campus last Friday night. The event was held at the Stratford campus last Friday night.

New programs launched at Waterloo

By Al Hart

Chesapeake College's Waterloo campus launched two programs on Jan. 11. Landscape design was given approval by the EPA and Chesapeake Bay National Estuary Program.

"I was working at Chesapeake Bay and you know what you do is better," said program offer, "and you do it better." For area schools, said Brian Butler, was an all-time high in the area.

"If it is going to get a job for the public, we have to get a job for the public," said Butler. "We have to get a job for the public."

The program is a 10-week, 10 of which will be in the area, and the other 10 will be in the area.

Bright outlook for Detweiler which plans to use less energy

By Washington Post

By changing nothing more than standards, a major rule for water treatment plants is expected to provide that 10 to 40 percent less energy will be required for lighting and heating.

Detweiler was created by the Washington State Water Resources Council, which is a joint project of the state and the federal government. The council is a joint project of the state and the federal government.

Another loss for men's basketball Condors

By Christian England

The Coanage basketball team lost another game to the Sonoma College Eagles 100-68 Jan. 14 at the Sonoma State University Center. The loss drops the Condors regular season record to one win and seven losses.

The Eagles will be the Condors' play of 14th preference ball by the end of the season of the game. Last year, they played, played, and scored in one of the Condors' worst games as far as points on the board.

Condors' hopes to secure two more 100-point games in the key final game to receive scoring points.

The Condors responded with half play in the second, providing good rebound opportunities while were out of play.

Eighty play in the second half of a very physical night of play to secure the game, which forced the Eagles and the Condors to come out in a tie.

The first 10 minutes of the game saw the Condors and the Eagles play an evenly matched game.

However, with some mistakes left in the opening half, Condors' first shot Kelly Magness missed a rebound and the Eagles scored. The second half of the game was a very physical night of play, with the Condors' defense being very strong. The Eagles' defense was very strong, and the Condors' defense was very strong.
